Tracy	James	Volume 16 page 6 Tracy, James. Communication dated South Hadley, Nov. 9, 1776, signed by Joseph Moody, Chairman of Committee of Correspondence of South Hadley, stating that representation had been made to them by said Tracy, Captain, that there was an opportunity for his being exchanged for Lieut. John Knights, an officer on parole assigned to residence at South Hadley, but held in confinement in the jail at Northampton, and expressing their willingness to agree to the exchange, notwithstanding the ill treatment they had received at the hands of said Knights, and the fact that he was suspected of having stolen a box containing documents relating to surveys, and that he had not paid for his subsistence; ordered in Council Nov. 23, 1776, that John Knights be permitted to be sent in the "Flag of Truce" at Marblehead to be exchanged for said Tracy, provided he make suitable concessions to the Committee of Correspondence of South Hadley for his ill treatment of them and also discharge his indebtedness; also, petition dated Boston, Aug. 1, 1777, signed by Robert Tracy, in behalf of said James Tracy, Commander of the privateer "Hero," lying in Boston harbor and ready for sea, stating that the Naval Officer of the port had refused to give him a pass unless he could produce a certificate from the treasurer based upon the bonds required to be given by the owners of privateers; that the vessel had been fitted out at Newburyport and had passed the fort there and at [p.6] Marblehead and had only entered Boston for a harbor, and as his owners had probably furnished the necessary bonds, if required to do so at the place of fitting out, asking that the Naval Officer be directed to give him such a pass as shall enable him to put to sea; ordered in Council that the Naval Officer permit the vessel mentioned to pass the forts and proceed to sea.
